About OCB

OCB is a nonprofit organization.

All donations are tax deductible.

The Orangeburg Civic Ballet was established in 1993 by Tamalyn Blackman with 14 dancers in the company. Originally the company was known as the Orangeburg City Ballet and was housed at the Zimmerman Center in Orangeburg.

A few years later, the company moved to Tamalyn's Dance Centre on Springdale Street and the name was changed to the Orangeburg Civic Ballet (OCB). The first ballet production the Orangeburg City Ballet participated in was the Nutcracker, performed with the Junior Orangeburg Part Time Players. Joint productions continued for several years. In 1999 the Orangeburg Civic Ballet launched its first full length production of the Nutcracker. This production has grown into a favorite tradition for the Orangeburg community.

In 1998 OCB presented its first spring performance, Alice in Wonderland. Since that time, the ballet company has performed Sleeping Beauty, Coppelia, Cinderella, The Wizard of Oz, Peter Pan, and Alice in Wonderland. Tammy and the Geek, a short ballet, was created for the Orangeburg Civic Ballet by Cammie Bunch. Spring productions have also included opportunities to highlight the versatility of the OCB dancers after being taught by guest choreographers and Master teachers. Company members have had opportunities to enrich and expand their dance education through master classes offered at various locations including Columbia and Charleston, as well as in Orangeburg. Today the Orangeburg Civic Ballet has grown to more than 55 dancers aging from ages 8 through adult. School performances, appearances at various other venues including Piccolo Spoleto, Showcase Orangeburg and the North Charleston Arts Festival, have given the dancers opportunities both to perform and enjoy classical ballet, as well as other forms of dance.
